There are numerous quality marks and labels issued by various national and international inspection, certification, legislative, governmental, bodies and associations. Not many of them have been authorized and widely recognized. European Organization for Quality (EOQ), Europe's leading promoter of quality with its mission to improve European society through the promotion of quality in its broadest sense offers a quality mark which could be issued by its members. Full members of EOQ - National Quality representatives will be accredited by EOQ for issuing Quality Marks for various products / services in their countries. Quality Marks issued in European countries, based on the same selection process, will be named National Quality Mark with "Recognized by EOQ" statement added to the original national logos.

Candidates for National Quality Mark have to fulfill several conditions, which could be classified in three groups:

- Business performance – positive financial indicators, respect and compliance with all international and national standards legislation and contractual obligations referring to products / services receiving NQM.
- Implementation and maintenance of Quality Management System which provides stable and successful business operations.
- High proportion of at least 50% of cumulative value of development, knowledge, materials, semi-finished goods and work referring to products / services must have national origin.

A series of documents, regulations, procedures, questionnaires, surveys, have been designed and edited. All data have to be analyzed and used as the base for issuing National Quality Mark. NQM certificate could be issued only based on presented evidences and successful assessment of all requirements.
